Midweek English Language Teaching Sessions

Teaching British Culture
By
Ed Russell

As English language teachers, our responsibilities, whether we acknowledge them or not, extend to being aware of and raising awareness of culture. In this session I will propose that we work towards interculturality and cosmopolitanism as starting points via an uncovering of what we believe to be normal. We will approach the puzzle of teaching “culture” and language using practical activities you will be able to use in class. This is a joint session booked in conjunction with Martyn Ford’s talk at the same venue.
